

The GLI - in partnership with PLC at CU Boulder - is looking for highly motivated and intellectually curious students to engage in an immersion course and unique experiential learning opportunities to think differently and think big about how we approach international development in East Africa. From public health to social impact, your experiences this summer in East Africa will change you!

The Global Livingston Institute (GLI) encourages everyone to _____ and _____ before they _____.

The focus of GLI is not to fix Africa but to listen and think about the experiences that you are having with the people you meet and the communities you visit. Spend time getting to know and learn about the people who live and work in the communities where you travel and engage in a rich dialogue with business leaders, NGO leaders, government leaders, artist, educators, small business owners, and community members in Uganda and Rwanda about what it means to impact positive change. What does it really mean to build a partnership with the people of East Africa?

GLI & Presidents Leadership Class have formed a strategic partnership to engage students in international development in Uganda and Eastern Africa. Students have the opportunity to earn credit during Maymester by taking PSCI 4995 – International Development in East Africa –a three credit course facilitated by GLI in East Africa. In addition, students have the opportunity to extend their trip to fulfill their lower- or upper-division walkabout.

This course is designed for students who are interested in understanding and addressing policy related to international development, public management, and public health practices.

March 1, 2016

Arriving in Uganda: May 16, 2016

Departing Rwanda: June 2, 2016

$5,370 (see below for information on financial aid & scholarship opportunities)

Tuition and fees, shared accommodation, entrance fees, most meals, ground transportation, & health insurance